Rhythm as the first gesture of life

With the internationally renowned percussionist Robyn Schulkowsky

A research into rhythm with Robyn Schulkowsky, accompanied by two dancer-performers: Marta Ciappina and David Labanca.

Their creative process, between rhythm and dance, makes us understand the ties which come into play whilst thinking of the word 'duration'.

Together, we ask the question: "What is rhythm?"

Rhythm is in the belly, it's inside us and it shows us that every one of us has their own way of listening, this is rhythm. Thinking of the word 'duration' permits an awareness of the ties which into play between rhythm and dance. Every sound, every movement has a beginning and an end. At the beginning there is an inspiration, as a first gesture of life, which we can define as an 'E'. An 'E' which stands in opposition to the 'Boom' granted at the end of the gesture, non-movement.

Through the 'E' and the 'Boom', our play begins.
